Marriageable Young Ladies.

No class of young people are so much abused as marriageable young ladies, and none are so helpless to defend themselves, when called by these opprobious epithets, "heartless," "inconstant" and "merciless." Hid securely away in almost every young lady's history there is a story of heart-break and blasted expectations, of which the cold world around has never dreamed. Hence her readiness to disclaim all knowledge of love. Perhaps her most intimate confidants would not believe she had a romantic episode connected with her life, but the sad expression on the young face is all that proves she has suffered. Her gradual giving up worldly interests will show how much. Not one-half of the women who marry give their lives into the keeping of the men of their choice. In almost every instance the man she loves best in the world is one who is not looked upon with favor by the parents. Can there be a more trying position for a loving young woman? She has been tenderly reared and beloved by her parents with an almost idolatrous devotion; they have staked much upon her comfortable and brilliant settlement in life, but when her lover comes, and she knows her heart can never be given to another, notwithstanding their deep contempt for him, she sees what a terrible disappointment she will be to them if she follows the promptings of her heart. Then comes the conflict between duty and inclination. Parents are growing old, and though she may have outgrown the school-girl age, she knows her first duty is to them. It is always a mystery to those who have passed the prime of life, why a daughter should not find it just as convenient to marry as she selects, instead of bestowing her heart upon a nameless young man who has no wealth. The girl goes blindly to work, determined to do what she thinks is right. She has been taught to obey her parents, and, besides, she must not embitter their later years by any act of hers. After much thoughtful consideration she gives up all her thought of a marriage that would grieve them, and heroically sacrifices herself in obedience to their wishes. She does not dare hope much for the future, but she believes she will be happy in the consciousness that she has done her duty, and the man she marries (poor innocent) knows nothing of this little by-play, and believes he possesses his wife's undivided heart, but the bitter awakening will come in time, and the result is an unhappy home. A man should marry, when young, some maiden who loves him for himself alone, rather than wait for maturer years that have brought wealth that weighs so heavily in the social balance, and ultimately will drag his soul into the very depths of shame, when he realizes he has bought and paid for a heart he never owned—a life that has dragged out merely an existence by his side, uncomplainingly, perhaps, for years. Thus the traffic in human hearts continues from age to age, and the world never thinks of blaming the fathers and mothers, but censures those to whom little blame belongs, who are more sinned against than sinning.—Correspondence in Cincinnati Farming World.

The Rights of Others.

If parents would teach their children to respect each other's rights under all circumstances, society would be burdened with few of those men whom we now meet daily, and who deliberately prey upon the folly or weakness of others. There are some children that seem to have no sense of "mine or thine," but borrow at pleasure what they want, appropriate to their own use what belongs to other members of the family, make sharp bargains, cut off the corners in a trade, and consider themselves only "smart" and praiseworthy when they have over-reached or outwitted their fellows. Unfortunately, in many such instances, the parent rejoices rather than mourns that "that child seems to have a faculty of taking care of himself." Let us sketch what seems to us an ideal condition in a family as to the principle of "mine and thine." Each member of the family has his own personal belongings, and these are sacred to him alone. No other member meddles therewith. His treasures are not inspected even or appropriated by any one but himself. If he have a room by himself, that room is safe from intrusion; no locks nor keys are needed to guard him nor his from impertinent and officious meddling. Nevertheless, the parents' oversight never fails; and they revise all bargains and agreements made between their children, so that the elder may not take advantage of the younger, or the sharp of the dull, so that each one shall have an "even chance" with the rest. The laws of equity govern parental decisions and secure to each child justice. With such training at home, there is little danger that these young people will develope into over-reaching, avaricious men and women.

Pillar Saints.

Among the freaks that have possessed men of a rigid order of faith in times past, nothing is so remarkable as that of anchorites who, with a view to separating themselves more completely from earth and fellow men, took up their abode on the tops of pillars, where they stood for years without coming down, exposed to all the variations of climate and weather. This happened chiefly in Syria, and they were known as Pillar Saints. The earliest and most celebrated of them was a monk who lived in the beginning of the fifth century, known as Simon of Stylite, from stilos, a column. He had lived secluded in a monastery nine years, without leaving his narrow cell, when it appeared to him that he was enjoying too much luxury for one of his pious profession, and that his example was therefore bad. So he built a pillar, on the top of which, only three feet in diameter, he took up his position. But this didn't suit him, owing perhaps to the ease with which he could stand there after getting a little accustomed to it, and he removed from pillar to post, each pillar a little higher than its predecessor, until finally he attained an altitude of about sixty feet, on a pillar, where he spent thirty-seven years of his life. To increase the severity of the ordeal, he wore an iron chain around his neck all this while, and during the recitation of his prayers bent his body so that his forehead touched his feet. It is said that on account of an ulcer that had formed on one of his legs, he was compelled during the last year of his life to stand on one foot, and that in this position he died, aged 72 years. How he got his nourishment up there is a mystery to us if it wasn't to him. So great was his fame that crowds of people flocked to see him, even from foreign countries. It is rarely that a man maintains such a prominent position for so many years without any let down.

THE MOUND BUILDERS.

What is Known and What is Guessed of the Prehistoric Americans.

[New York Times.]

In a lecture before the New York Academy of Science, on the prehistoric races of the American Continent, Professor John S. Newberry furnished, perhaps, the finest and most lucid summary that has yet been given of the present state of our verified scientific information as to the mound builders, the house builders, the Aztecs of the South, and the condition of the arts of civilization among these representatives of lost types. So many ingenious scientific romances have been elaborated by speculative antiquaries as to the origin of these races, and their possible relation to the prehistoric types of the Old World, that such a resume as Dr. Newberry gave of what is actually ascertained or fairly inferable from the data of mounds, pottery, inscriptions, textile fabrics, and other remains, is peculiarly valuable to the general student, who, bewildered by speculative theories cleverly interlaced with facts, and sadly puzzled by remote inference stated as verified information, finds himself without a starting point for the formation of an opinion. While not sharing in the fanatic enthusiasm that places these races in advance of the contemporary civilizations of the prehistoric races of Europe and Asia, and while taking no part in the endeavor to trace a relation between them, Dr. Newberry concedes their progress in certain arts and the magnificent scale upon which their public works were constructed. He regards the mound builders of the Valley of the Mississippi, among whom the symbolical form appears to have been neglected in the construction of their works of sepulture, and the races further West who built in the forms of birds and now extinct animals, as belonging to the same primitive stock, now probably represented by a few tribes of Western Indians—Indians so called for want of a better name, but differing in ancestral descent from the savage hordes to whom that term has been appropriated as widely as the Arab differs from the Persian. Unfortunately for science, and, perhaps, for Dr. Newberry's view of the subject, the remains of textile fabrics that were buried in the mounds have been destroyed by time and dampness, with the exception of a few shreds, which have been preserved by the salts of copper generated by the utensils with which they were originally interred. These shreds are not sufficient to establish an identity of design between the textile products of the mound builders and the curious blankets manufactured by certain house building tribes extant at the present day. Evidences derived from physical structure are, however, by no means to be disregarded in such cases, and here the testimony is strikingly in favor of the hypothesis that the descendants of the mound builders are to be sought in certain types of so-called Indians in the far West. Dr. Newberry has made a large and valuable collection of the textile fabrics bearing upon the question, and it is a singular fact that the distaff in use among these tribes and the mode of weaving are exactly identical with those of the ancient races of the Old World. One must not be misled by such coincidences, which, though striking and curious, are, like philological analogies and resemblances of root words, to say nothing of designs in the decoration of pottery, insufficient grounds for the assertion of a theory. If, as prehistoric geographers contend, the area now occupied by the Indian Ocean was once the seat of a densely populated continent, it is very possible that some historical relation may be finally made out between the primitive races of the great continents on the surface of the globe, but at the present juncture, as Dr. Newberry shows, there is not even sufficient basis for the most shadowy impression to that effect.

A Lively Adventuress.

A young woman who was brought up at Bradford, Canada, without any knowledge of her father and mother was finally taken to an insane asylum, from which she escaped and became an adventuress of the dime novel character. First she figured as an "escaped nun," and found lecturing in that capacity very profitable. Then she was a persecuted missionary from China, where she had achieved immense success in building up the Lord's kingdom. After this she tried to elope with a fourteen-year-old boy, the heir of considerable property. Then she declined into a consumptive, deceiving, by means of a red chemical hid in her cheek, the physicians themselves, who thought she was subject to hemorrhages. She has been a frequent guest at Rideau Hall, the residence of Lord Lorne, and was detected just in time to prevent her marriage with a rich and brilliant lawyer of Ottawa.—Detroit Free Press.

GEN. JOHN McNULTA, of Bloomington, is at Old Point Comfort, Virginia, for his health, which has been sadly impaired for several years.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR will, this week, take up his abode at the Soldier's Home, to avoid the heat and malaria laden atmosphere of the White House.

A MASS meeting of the Bond county Republicans, Saturday afternoon, appointed state delegates, and favored Inglis for State Superintendent of Public Instruction, as was to be expected from his own county.

JAMES B. DOYLE, the Illinois forger of United States bonds, was yesterday sentenced to twelve years in the Chester penitentiary. Doyle had been endeavoring to have his sentence set aside, and had strong influences working in his behalf at Washington, but his promises to expose other crooks were looked upon as quite thin, and on yesterday he received his sentence.

THE opinion prevails in Washington that Justice Bradley, of the supreme court, will deny the application of Mr. Reed, attorney for Guiteau, for a writ of habeas corpus, and that the last hope of the assassin of James A. Garfield is gone. Mr. Reed has exhausted all his resources now in behalf of his client, except to apply to President Arthur for an unconditional pardon, which, of course, the president would not entertain for a single moment. The 30th of June draws on apace.

THIS is indeed an unfortunate summer for picnics. A huddle of men, women and children, in summer clothes, out in a grove this season, shivering around a picnic table and calling for "more mustard on that ham" is not an inspiring sight.

The Necessity of Tile Drainage in Illinois Again Illustrated.

Tile Drainage—Its Absolute Necessity and Advantages, with Suggestions for its More Speedy and Universal Adoption.

DECATUR, Ill., June 15.—One extreme follows another; and never has this old adage received a more striking illustration than at present. Last season we were all burnt up with fearful drouth, and this year we are being drowned! Rain has fallen so incessantly that it has simply been impossible to get in spring crops properly or on time, especially corn, which is consequently going to be very late, and if this kind of weather continues any longer it will interfere with working it; and a poor corn crop is a disaster to us. To many a succession of unfavorable seasons is worse; it means serious embarrassment, if not bankruptcy! Last season our corn crop was poor and short because of the drouth, and this year we are all flooded. On Saturday week, after the heavy rain of the preceding day and night, I took a run over the superb road bed of the Wabash railway, across the state from Danville to Decatur, Springfield, Jacksonville, etc., to note the condition of the soil, and, as the landscape panorama passed swiftly before me, mile after mile, the richest and most productive soil the sun ever shone upon presented a most deplorable appearance. As far as the eye could reach everything was soaked to flooding, and across the more level fields lay an almost unbroken sheet of water, glimmering in a summer's sun! It was simply fearful. The young corn (that a few had been fortunate enough to get in between rains) coming or well up, was standing pale and sickly in a bed of most plastic mud, while hundreds, aye thousands, of acres of it were completely covered with water. I marveled greatly to myself, wondering how long in this day of intelligence the farmers of Illinois were going to be content to plod along at the complete mercy of the weather and seasons? Agriculture is the undisputed basis of all prosperity and wealth; it is the support and foundation for all other business, and yet has the least protection of any in this respect. What matters it to the manufacturer whether it be cold or warm, wet or dry; he has protected himself with staunch buildings, and his business goes on without interruption, delay, or uncertainty in yield or profit. The farmer can also as certainly and easily protect his business from either extreme, wet or drouth, and he can make his soil warmer; his crop growing season longer; he can arrange to work his ground quicker after rains, and get ahead of the weeds, instead of weeds getting ahead of him, thereby keeping his growing crops clean easier, and with less labor, which means cheaper—that is, bigger—profits.

How? Simply by tiling his land thoroughly—that is, laying a network of tile—not an isolated line of tile in this depression and the next—for "thorough drainage" is absolutely necessary to obtain the full benefit of this great improvement. Its advantages are so numerous and conceded that it is astonishing why many doubting stand or still delay to at once adopt it:

1. It prevents any possible damage from flooding or excessive rains.

2. It enables one to work land sooner after rains—almost immediately, where there is a network of tile.

3. It is equally as good a protection from the other extreme—excessive drouth in several ways.

4. It lengthens the season for labor and vegetation by rendering the soil earlier in spring and keeping off the effects of cold weather longer in the fall.

5. It deepens the surface soil and lessens its cooling by evaporation.

6. It prevents surface washing by drawing the water down though the soil as fast as it falls (eventually), thereby also securing the benefit of whatever fertilizing material it contains.

7. It enables the soil also to receive a larger supply of the fertilizing gases of the atmosphere (carbonic acid and ammonia), because more open and porous for passage of air.

8. It promotes fine tilth by rendering the soil more friable, and becomes mellow as a garden bed for crops.

9. It diminishes evaporation, thus raising the temperature of the soil; and warms the lower portions of the subsoil.

10. It prevents the heaving out of grain, lessening the chance of water-killing.

11. It prevents land from becoming sour, and replaces stagnant water with life-giving air and warmth to the plants.

12. It facilitates the chemical action by which the constituents of the soil are prepared for plant food, and by which its mechanical texture is also improved.

13. It lessens the formation of a hurtful crust on the surface after rains in hot weather.

14. It facilitates the hauling of loads over the field, and renders land less liable to injury from the treading of cattle.

15. It facilitates the destruction of weeds, because the soil, becoming more friable, does not cling in a mass to their roots when torn up in cultivation, and the soil is worked easier as well as far more thoroughly with less effort.

16. It preserves a more equal degree of moisture in the soil under all circumstances, since it not only renders its saturation with water impossible, but keeps it in such a condition of pulverization that in times of drouth it absorbs moisture by capillary attraction from the air thus enabled to pass through it (from the tile upwards), never becomes parched and baked as in the case of undrained lands.

17. It removes malaria.

18. Lastly, it reduces farming from a business of uncertain meagre profit to one of absolutely certain and lucrative profit.

When such truths have been demonstrated beyond cavil by the experience of all who have tried "thorough drainage," no room is left for doubt or argument in opposition. Finally, when we reflect that land thoroughly tiled will every year produce a far heavier and cheaper cultivated crop than will untiled land under the most favorable season that may happen, why delay to adopt it? Experience has shown that 25 to 100 per cent. profit is realized in judicious expenditure for tiling, and that the increased profit for the season will repay the entire cost of thoroughly tiling a tract of land, thereafter a permanent investment to that amount. What investment is more lucrative than that for the farmer? It is better than banking. However, it will not do to go into this vast improvement and inviting field of investment for the land-owner without a careful examination into its details, which would be impossible here.

For the practical details and particulars of how to tile, Klippert's or French's work on farm-drainage should be procured. They will be as interesting to the progressive farmer as a novel, and far more valuable and beneficial. French's work is copiously illustrated with cuts, diagrams of fields, etc., and no one can make any serious or expensive blunder in tiling who has read it. And he also gives the experience of the English people, who are far more thorough and painstaking than we are—a great defect in our farming. Then for the daily experience of the present day, here in this country, there is one periodical devoted to the subject, the Drainage Journal, a monthly, published at Indianapolis, Ind., which is constantly giving the experience of those tiling and many practical suggestions. A "Circular on Farm Drainage," full of valuable information, can be obtained by sending to S. D. Fisher, Secretary of the Illinois Department of Agriculture, at Springfield; and also a thorough "Essay on the Great Want of Illinois—Road and Farm Drainage," was issued by H. W. S. Cleaveland, landscape architect and civil engineer, 97 Washington street, Chicago.

To resume, "thorough drainage" is becoming an imperative necessity, and that eminent agriculturist was right who exclaimed, "We must drain our lands or go still farther west!" Continuous "bad seasons" of either extreme of wet or drouth, as also competition, will compel it, for in this age the progressive farmer will commence thorough tiling (as many already have), and distance his less energetic neighbor. He will raise bigger and far more profitable crops, have no failures, and eventually buy up his less successful neighbor's farm for his own sons. Prior to 1878 we had several successive wet seasons. Last summer was excessively dry. The probabilities are, therefore, that this one will not be dry, and some of our closest observers of the weather and Nature's laws predict a wet season both this year and next. Those who tile extensively will be called lucky, whereas there is no luck about it, for a greater truth or more timely suggestion was never made by man to fellow-men than when Mr. Joseph Medill, of Chicago, wrote last fall: "The future prosperity of Illinois agriculture depends on the amount of tile drainage, for the certainty and greatness of her crops will be measured by the extent of her tile drainage"—words of prophecy, warning, and advice that will be verified and remembered as long as Illinois shall endure.

Therefore, commence now. The great bugbear is the first expense, the cry being that it costs almost as much as to buy the land over again. Let us consider this: A owns land worth $40 an acre. B owns a farm near town worth $70 to $80 an acre—about double. Is B any more sure of a crop than A? Yet his land has cost him twice as much as A's. Suppose A commences the thorough drainage or tiling of his farm, and for sake of the argument that it does cost him $30 an acre to do it. After it is accomplished, though but five or ten acres a year at first, note the difference. A is getting big crops, sure every year, making money, while B is no surer of a crop when he plants it than he used to be. He is losing money, while A has now a most lucrative and permanent investment, paying him better returns than any bank or railroad stock, and much more secure. If you now go to A you can neither buy his land nor get him to put any spare money into anything else than into the ground! This is the universal result. A certain Chicago capitalist, owning large tracts of land in Piatt county, fully alive to its importance and necessity, but having much else requiring his attention, exclaimed, "Our land has all got to be tiled, and I know I am losing thousands of dollars every year I put it off. I am going to commence now and do some every year." Another in Vermilion county three years ago commenced to tile his land thoroughly, and put in over ten miles the first year; the next year over twenty; last year thirty—making seventy miles in three years—a model farm! Certainly he found it paid him, or he would have put his money elsewhere after his first year's experience.

Another reason why many delay commencing to tile, who admit its value, profit and necessity, is want of ready means or capital; but neither is this position tenable, for whoever has the land has the means also. Let me elucidate. It has become proverbial that American farmers, notably those west of the Middle States, have invariably more land than they can work; or, to put it stronger, they would make more clear profit each year if they cultivated a less number of acres more carefully and thoroughly. This is an indisputable truth, speaking of land as it is, untiled. Corollary: If every farmer on soil underlaid with clay would sell one-fourth of his land and put the proceeds into judicious thorough tile-drainage of the rest, he would make more clear money and easier, from the half of his original farm when so tiled than he now does from the whole untiled. Just one year ago I made this same suggestion to the farmers of the prairie states through the pen of that eminent agriculturalist, the author of "Model Farms and Their Methods," S. T. K. Prime Esq., of Dwight, Ill.

It is a simple suggestion that entirely refutes the absurd excuse that "tiling is so expensive, and I have not the necessary means now." Well did Mr. P. exclaim, "Ye grumblers and croakers, who are all the time running behindhand, cease! There is no finer or richer body of land in the world than lies within the borders of Illinois. Visit those localities in the state where they cannot manufacture tile fast enough to supply the demand, and see the evidences of thrift and prosperity, and they will universally tell you that the cause is, 'I have tiled my farm!'"

To this suggestion, nevertheless, it was once suggested that you cannot always sell off a small piece; but "none are so blind as those who won't see," for in nine cases out of ten it can be if offered cheap enough to make it an object. However, there is no doubt but money can be safely borrowed to commence tiling with. The true plan, anyhow, is to do but little the first year and more each succeeding year as you acquire experience, and as the profits of the first tiling done begins to repay it. We often hear of a man who has lost his farm from having mortgaged it to build a fine house—a sort of expensive luxury indulged in; but who ever heard of one losing his farm because of having borrowed money to insure certainty and increase in the yield of his crops by tiling? In England the government authorizes loans on land for this very purpose, but in this country, where land is plenty and cheap, and interest higher, the plan suggested is best, though our rate of interest is steadily lowering. The main thing is to once get commenced at it, in some way. This is half the battle. Once do a little and you will soon be doing more.

In connection with this subject it should be borne in mind by the managers of our railroads in the prairie states, that in the future as they rebuild and put in new culverts and like waterways, that it would be well to build them larger than seemingly necessary, for as thorough tiling is practiced and becomes general, in heavy rainfalls several times the volume of water that now passes will be then discharged through these outlets, because the tile will run it all off at once or quickly with a rush. A hint to the wise is sufficient, but this suggestion if remembered and acted upon, will save the railroads thousands of dollars in the near future. ULRIC BOCKENSDERFER.

THE STORM KING.

Details of the Great Iowa Cyclone.

Guiteau's Last Chance Gone.

DES MOINES, Ia., June 19.—There are but little new developments to-day from the destruction by the cyclone at Grinnell. No further deaths are reported to-day, but up to 11 o'clock last night forty-one deaths had occurred at Grinnell, and twenty-three at outside points—seventeen of them at Malcolm and in that vicinity, and five in the country northwest of Grinnell. The doctors say that six or seven and even more of the wounded at Grinnell won't live twenty-four hours, and some of the physicians put the final death-roll at Grinnell alone at more than fifty, while some fear it will yet reach as high as 75. Of the wounded in that city there are now over 120 known cases, and some 80 of them more or less serious. The best posted men at Grinnell yesterday estimated that the death-roll of the calamity is not unlikely, and is indeed very probable to reach 100. It is now sixty-four as we have it. There were six deaths yesterday and last night.

Mr. J. B. Grinnell states that fifty of the people in losing their homes lose all they have in this world.

Governor Sherman has issued the following proclamation:

To the People of Iowa: The tornado which passed through the central portion of the state on the night of the 17th inst. has proven one of the most frightful calamities in the history of the commonwealth, along the path of the storm, and especially at Grinnell and Malcolm. There was not only destruction of property, but an appalling loss of life, and many who escaped death in their ruined houses are left in a condition of suffering and need which appeals urgently to generosity. People with ready hands and generous hearts have already done much to care for the wounded and shelter the homeless, but the results of so frightful a disaster must be long-lasting, and others further removed from the scene only await opportunity to aid their stricken fellow-citizens. I do, therefore, most heartily recommend that all contributions for their relief be sent to Hon. J. B. Grinnell, who is fully authorized to receive them, and to whom such a trust of generosity may be most confidently committed.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, June 19.—Saturday night at 11 o'clock a terrific storm passed in a southeasterly direction over Des Moines and Henry counties. In Burlington only rain and hail fell, but a mile south of the city a hurricane blew down barns, houses, orchards and destroyed a vast amount of property but none are reported killed. The electrical display was remarkable. The sky was aglow constantly for two hours. At Mt. Pleasant, 28 miles west, the hurricane was very destructive. The storms met over the town at 11:30, and accompanied by rain and hail broke in fearful fury, demolishing entirely the Baptist church, which cost $25,000, lifting the spire from the Presbyterian church high in the air and the point struck the walk in the front of the church and was driven into the ground many feet, and the roofs of all the churches in the place were otherwise damaged. Nearly every business house in the city was unroofed and damaged, and the park in the public square was filled with tin roofs rolled into bunches like wads of paper.

The rain damaged much merchandise and lasted forty minutes. Three hundred dwellings were unroofed and damaged; not a single tree is left standing and thousands of trees are twisted off. Three large brick school houses are in ruins. Our college buildings escaped, being protected by a fine grove of trees in the campus, which are all down. Only two persons are reported killed, a mother and son named Scott, who live near the city, but none were seriously injured in town. The insane hospital with 60 inmates, in the track of the storm, is not damaged. The loss at Mt. Pleasant is above $150,000. Fifty freight cars standing on the track one mile east of Mt. Pleasant were careened upon the main line, and a C. B. & Q. freight colliding with them wrecked them completely. Engineer L. M. Parmeter was slightly injured.

GRINNELL, Iowa, June 19.—The storm was the old-fashioned funnel shape in the beginning, and came on with a roar and deafening clash. It first struck Kelly Station, 40 miles west of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, and did much damage, already known, before reaching Grinnell, where it did its deadliest and most destructive work. It struck the town about 8 p. m. People saw it fully five minutes before it came, and were almost panic stricken. The storm seemed to have explosive force not unfrequently carrying out one side or end of a house; within a space of 20 feet one house would be thrown to the east and another to the west. Most of the buildings were crushed like egg shells and reduced to splinters. All who had cellars were in them, and of those who were only one was killed. The greatest loss of life was where people remained in the house. It took a sweep about 1,000 feet wide and mowed everything to the ground, leaving but a portion of half a dozen houses on a territory of ten blocks, which were before covered with the finest residences in the city; also the homes of many well-to-do mechanics. Over 100 were laid waste, and of them almost nothing remains. They were valued at fully $250,000.

ATCHISON, Kansas, June 19.—The mail and travelers bring more accurate reports of the effects of Friday night's storm, showing it extended southward and westward of Kansas City and doing greater aggregate damage than first supposed. Many small towns and hamlets were visited and all are in mourning over loss of life and property. A family of three are reported drowned on a flat boat 12 miles below here.

An Iowa City special says: It is reported the loss of life at Irish Ridge number ten to twelve.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The talk of the president visiting Chicago seems to be entirely without foundation. Private Secretary Phillips says to-day there is no probability of the president going, as he finds it impossible to get away anywhere. The talk of a visit to Long Branch is also untrue. He will remove to the soldiers' home soon, and remain until the adjournment of congress, after which he has no definite plans.

The number of bills and joint resolutions introduced in the house and senate this session is 9,000, and will probably reach 10,000 before adjournment.

Congressman Kelley is attempting to get another consideration to-day for the bill correcting the error in the tariff law on woolen knit goods. As the law now stands, the closing up of the manufactories in this country is inevitable.

A deal of interest is felt in Pendleton's attempt to get a consideration of his civil service bill to-day, as the real object is an attack upon the Republican executive committee's assessment circular.

Guiteau takes his situation coolly. He still professes a belief that the president will come to his rescue at the last moment. Mr. Hicks, his spiritual adviser, says he believes he will go to the gallows without flinching.

CLEVELAND, O., June 19.—About the same number of men as on Saturday went to work this morning at the Cleveland rolling mills. A few non-union strikers resumed their old places in the wire mill. They are the first to return. No disturbance occurred. Sensational reports are prevalent of collisions between small parties of workmen and strikers, at points remote from the mills, but no serious case, since the assault upon Blythe, is authenticated.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Justice Bradley, in the United States Supreme Court, to whom Guiteau's counsel applied for a writ of habeas corpus, to-day filed a denial of the application with the clerk of the court. Justice Bradley holds that the court of the District of Columbia had full jurisdiction and no reason exists for granting the writ.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL., June 19.—The Prohibitionists of McLean county held a convention this afternoon, and nominated Jerome W. Nichols, editor of the Prohibitionist, of this city, for the legislature. A full set of county candidates were also nominated, excepting county judge. The temperance people of McLean county intend making a hot campaign.

METROPOLIS, Ill., June 19.—A terrible cyclone struck this city Saturday evening, blowing down several houses, killing Dick Turner, capsizing and sinking the steamer Jennie Walker, and scattering the harvested wheat in the vicinity. The damage is heavy.

ST. LOUIS, June 19.—Five of the principal gamblers, against whom indictments have been standing, pleaded guilty and were sentenced to six months in jail this afternoon.

A NEW YORK letter-writer says: "On a Sunday not many weeks since, Mr. Thomas Whitney and his sweetheart, Clara Louise Kellogg, the songstress, went to church together in Philadelphia, returned home after service, and dined with Mr. Whitney's parents. Everything looked serene and lovely, and the happy wedding was much talked about. Clara went to her home after dinner, and in the evening, much to his surprise, her betrothed received a note from his sweetheart in which she broke off the engagement and backed out emphatically and irreparably. Her mother did not think Mr. Whitney the proper man for Clara to bestow her heart and ducats upon, and Clara, being young and innocent, had to obey mamma, who knows all about these wicked men. Mr. Whitney immediately took passage and sailed for Europe, undoubtedly thinking that there is some truth in the saying that "Women are as fickle as the wind."

That Alleged Map of Illinois.

We have been presented by Hall & Hostettler, of the Decatur Herald, with a copy of their premium map of Illinois, which would have been right handy to have around six or eight years ago.—The counties are no doubt properly placed by the publisher, Mr. Tunison, of Baltimore, Md., but in naming the railroads there are many glaring discrepancies, and we wonder that the Herald folks accepted the alleged correct production. The Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific Railway is put down as the "T., W. & W.;" the Champaign branch of the Wabash as the "Decatur & Monticello;" the P., D. & E. as the "D., S. & M.;" the "Pekin Division of the T., W. & W," and so on. A stranger in these parts looking at the map to locate the Wabash road would be at sea, and would, sooner or later, become disgusted. We will say in this connection that Mr. Tunison's agent at Jacksonville first came to the REPUBLICAN office when he arrived in Decatur with samples of this same "Map of Illinois," and endeavored to induce the publishers of this paper to take hold of the chromo scheme; but on inspecting the map we noted the errors alluded to above, and then told the agent that the map was out of date and a fraud. He acknowledged that the railroads were improperly named, but had no good excuse to offer. He left and sought fresh pastures when he found that the REPUBLICAN would not purchase an outfit of the chromo maps. We thank the Herald folks for their kindly remembrance.

Was it Spite Work?

A telegram from Macon states that soon after one o'clock on Monday morning a fire broke out in the postoffice at Assumption, 20 miles south of Decatur, on the Illinois Central railroad, and three buildings were destroyed. The flames were staid by people tearing down another building. The losers are John Bridges, postmaster, two-thirds stock of groceries; E. Copperthwaite, attorney, library building; Mrs. McCormick, millinery; and J. Stapleton, jeweler. The total loss is about $5,000. The fire was the work of an unknown incendiary, who used coal oil and shavings. No insurance. While tearing down a building Dr. Lambert had his left eye destroyed by a rope breaking and striking him on the ball, bursting it. Two years ago, Sunday, Leman Logan was sent to Chester for three years for burglarizing the Assumption post office and stealing $1500, and it is supposed that some confederate sought revenge on Mr. Bridges for prosecuting Logan.

Change of Management.

To-day a change in the management in the office of the Decatur Tank Line Company took place. Mr. H. C. Crosthwait, who has been connected with the office for six years, succeeding Mr. S. T. Berry as general manager. Mr. Berry has returned to Cleveland, O., and Mr. Crosthwait has assumed control of affairs. The business of the company in Decatur is in a flourishing condition, and while the trade will regret Mr. Berry's retirement, we can say for his successor, Mr. Crosthwait, that he is fully as competent as any of his predecessors, and will be as faithful and attentive in the discharge of the duties of the responsible position as any man who could have been selected for the place.

The Clayton Masonic Relief Association.

The annual meeting of "The Clayton Masonic Relief Association," an incorporated institution, for which Mr. W. S. Nichols is agent in Decatur, was held at Clayton, Ill., on June 6th, when the officers made their reports and other business was transacted. This association is now five years old and its membership embraces over one thousand persons. The reports show that the affairs of the association are in a most satisfactory and prosperous condition. The surplus funds amount to $5,069, which is securely invested in government bonds and real estate. There has been paid out for benefits during the year $15,439, and since the formation of the association, $59,913.05. Fifteen death losses have been met, seven of which were carried over from 1881. There are now to be paid two assessments which come out of the general fund, which fact shows that the association is not a speculative association, but pays its way as it goes. Mr. Nichols, who may be found at the Illinois Central ticket office, will give all interested any required information concerning this meritorious association.

IT should be stated that the Iowa State hose races at Muscatine on Thursday were run under the management of the State Association, and that the sweepstakes contest on Friday was managed and decided by a committee of ten Muscatine citizens. It is from the decision of these ten disinterested citizens who awarded the prizes to the Decatur Rescues that the Muscatine professionals appeal to the civil courts. When the case comes up for trial on Sept. 6th, the representatives of the Decatur team will be at Muscatine with their evidence and prove that their claim is just.

Republican Delegates.

The Republicans of Macon township have elected Dr. Wm. Sturgis, J. J. Richmond, C. N. Walls and Isaac Peeper as delegates to the county convention.

Illini township will be represented in the county convention by the following: R. M. Hamilton, J. T. Winslow and J. O. Remick.

"Children's Day."

The postponed "Children's Day" exercises were held at Janes' Chapel on Sunday, and proved to be of a most interesting character. MEN'S fine low shoes, all styles, at 15-d&wtf BARBER & BAKER'S

Macon County Veteran Association.

The headstones, as furnished by the U. S. Government for deceased soldiers of Macon county, have arrived, and will be placed in their proper positions at once. The vice presidents of the different townships are requested to place those that may arrive for their localities in position, and report their action to me as early as possible, accompanied by the bill of same as well as the expense incurred in setting the stones. JOHN A. BARNES,
Sec. M. Co. V. A.

These headstones were seen by a reporter this morning. They are about 4 feet in length, 12 inches wide and two inches thick. The name of each dead soldier is cut on the face of the stone, together with the company and regiment of which the deceased was a member.

Below are the names of the dead soldiers buried in Greenwood cemetery: G. W. Olrey, Sergeant Leander East, Lt. W. H. East, S. M. Culver, John Davis, Capt. Sam'l Winegardner, Frank Pfeifer, Corporal J. T. Sweet, E. P. Fuller, J. B. Bosworth, James Haggard, Lieut. J. E. Jones, Nathan Durfee, B. S. James, C. E. Smythe and F. P. Fuller. In the Catholic cemetery are Lambert, Langheld, Poppe and ——; in the Niantic cemetery is the body of J. H. Cox; in the North Fork cemetery, C. W. Wheeler; in Long Creek cemetery, James Devore.

Capt. Barnes requests us to state that there are buried in different parts of the county the remains of other dead soldiers, and their names and place of burial should be sent to Mr. Barnes at once that headstones for the graves may be secured. Mr. Barnes will send in another order for headstones in a few days.

A Big Time on the Fourth.

There will be a grand 4th of July celebration in the grove at Newburg, Friends Creek township, Macon county. A procession will be formed at Argenta at nine o'clock a. m., and will move to the ground under the direction of the marshal and his assistants, headed by the Argenta band. The oration will be delivered by A. T. Summers, and addresses will be delivered by others. Dinner will be furnished from baskets promptly at half-past 12 p. m. All are requested to turn out early with well filled baskets and enjoy an old-fashioned joyous 4th of July celebration. A grand display of fire works will take place at night. By order of the committee of arrangements.

"Davy Crockett."

This play, which is as good as a Mascotte for Frank Mayo, will be represented here on Friday evening next, and it will certainly draw a larger audience. The St. Louis Republican had this to say of the Mayo troupe:

Mr. Frank Mayo opened a season at the People's Theatre last evening with "Davy Crockett" to a full audience, and he cast the spell of his magnetic method over the audience in his good old style. No stage character draws nearer nature, in its freshness and simplicity, than Mayo's Davy Crockett. It appeals to the best sentiments and emotions of humanity like a reality, and the illusion is as perfect as the glamour of a dream. The performance was warmly received and heartily enjoyed. The drama was well set in scenery and well played by the company.

George W. Downing didn't get there. Instead of going to Muscatine from Chicago, he started for Indianapolis where he sold a stack of goods.

J. T. Findley, who has been visiting his sister at Grand Rapids, Mich., has returned to the city, and is now a salesman at Peniwell's store.

Misses Lulu and Gertie Rockwell, of Taylorville, and William Cooper, of Vera Cruz, Mexico, are guests of Dr. Trowbridge and family.

James W. Haworth, esq., is at Ocean Grove, N. J., spending the summer. He is a guest at the Arlington Hotel at that pleasure resort.

Jacob Frick, of Macon, contemplates removing with his family to Missouri in a few months. Mr. Frick has sold his farm of 160 acres near Macon at $50 per acre.

Herman Myers, of Macon, was in Decatur to-day consulting with attorneys. Mr. Myers avers that although Macon is a temperance town, all people in the place are not prohibitionists.

General Oglesby came over from Lincoln last night and departed for home this afternoon. He was seen by a reporter who asked him among other things if he had any more Lincoln base ball clubs to send over to be waxed by the Decatur Reds, to which the General replied with one of those well-known smiles, "I think not."

Charles J. Holt is meeting with great success in his temperance work in Missouri and is nightly adding fresh stars to his crown of glory as a cold water lecturer. People come out to hear him by the hundreds, and at Breckinridge lately a special train of four coach loads of people was run from a neighboring town to hear Illinois' eloquent missionary. Mr. Holt has an engagement to deliver a Fourth of July oration, and Governor St. John wants him to come to Kansas and give the temperance ball a fresh start in that state, all of which we glean from a rosy letter just received by a Decatur citizen.

Cheap Fares to Indianapolis.

Acting general ticket agent of the I., B. & W. writes the Decatur agent that the road will sell excursion tickets over the old I., D. & S. line (now the St. Louis Division of the I., B. & W.) at the rate of two (2) cents per mile each way, to and from all stations, on July 3rd and 4th, good returning to and including July 5th.

For the military and Knight Templar Encampment, to be held at Indianapolis July 1st to 6th, inclusive, we shall sell excursion tickets from all stations at the rate of two (2) cents per mile each way on July 1st, 2d, 3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th, good returning to and including July 7th.

Preparations are complete for making this Encampment the grandest affair ever held in the West.

A full attendance of all companies of the Indiana State militia and Knight Templars is secured, and many independent military and battery companies from all portions of the country will participate.

A POPULAR TONIC
For Weak Lungs and Consumption.
No preparation ever introduced to the American public, for the relief and cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Debilitated Constitution, Weakness of the Lungs, or Consumption in the incipient or advanced stages of the disease, has ever met with the indorsements of physicians or patients as the celebrated "Tolu, Rock and Rye." The repeated and continued sales of the article everywhere are the best evidence of its real merits. Letters and testimonials from every quarter of the country, attesting the stimulating, tonic and healing effects, are in possession of the proprietors, and can be adduced to convince the most skeptical reader of its intrinsic virtues. Further commendation is unnecessary and superfluous, as a trial of this article, having a pleasant taste and agreeable flavor, will satisfy all those who are afflicted or pining away with pulmonary weakness of the relief to be secured by the use of Tolu, Rock and Rye. The Daily Republican.

DECATUR, ILL., JUNE 20, 1882.

Increased Pensions.

A late Washington dispatch says: Scores of letters are received daily by members of the senate pensions committee in relation to the bill that recently passed the house, increasing the rate of pensions to soldiers and sailors who lost an arm or a leg in the service, to $40 per month. The committee has the bill under consideration, but may not conclude to act on it during the present session of congress. Mr. Dudley, the commissioner of pensions, at the request of Senator Mitchell, has addressed a letter to the committee on Pensions, explaining the scope and effect of the proposed law. It was asserted in the brief debate which preceded the passage of the bill that its cost would be only in the neighborhood of $160,000 per annum. Commissioner Dudley said: "The data in my possession enable me to give you a very close and intelligent estimate of the full cost, which I submit here for your information: Number who have lost one arm, 5,131; number who have lost one leg, 4,722; number who have lost one arm and one leg, 20. As the two first-mentioned receive a pension of $18 and $24 per month according to the point of amputation, the main increase in the rate of the 9,853 would be $19 per month, or an increased annual value of $2,246,484. The twenty pensioners who have lost one hand and one foot would be increased only $4 per month, or an annual value of $960, making the increased annual value on the roll for amputation, $2,247,444." Referring to equivalent disabilities the commissioner says: "The 500 pensioners who now receive $31.25 and $36 per month respectively would involve a net increase to the roll of $50,000; 7,000 pensioners who are in receipt of $24, a like increase of $4,344,000; and the 8,140 pensioners who are receiving each $8 a month, a like increase in value of $2,148,960. The total increase of the annual value of the roll would be $3,542,960. It will be seen that the bill cost $5,790,400." The commissioner thinks five or six years' work by the pension office will be required to settle the claims of those entitled to the increase and the investigating of the claims of applicants not entitled to the benefit of the proposed law. He recommends that, if the bill should pass, a proviso should be inserted in the bill that claims pending before the bureau should have the precedence in adjudication to those proposed in the bill.

CHEAP GOODS are the result of judicious purchasing, and the largest sale [illegible] That we h[illegible] houses are in ruins [illegible] buildings escaped, we call attention by a fine grove [illegible] to special articles, which are all [illegible] and no articles [illegible] the smallest to the la[illegible] son named the same scrutiny. We [illegible] but non[illegible] are as much bound to adh[illegible] truth in their advertisements as [illegible] or mechanics in their business transactions; and that misrepresentations are resorted to where there is no merit, and for the purpose of deceiving the plain unsuspecting class, who can least afford the deception, which robs them of their dues. Goods constantly change in styles and prices, so that the most experienced merchants find it difficult to determine values; and the seeming artlessness which invests the ordinary buyer, or the "intelligent public" with a knowledge of merchandise, that nine merchants in ten do not possess, may be very flattering indeed, but this observation is only made to lull persons into security in order to practice a still greater deception. There is no law to punish dealers for representing their purchases as coming direct from importers and manufacturers, when the facts are against them. Nor for giving special reasons for marking down goods, after six weeks untiring labor, TWO HUNDRED PER CENT. BELOW COST. But the dealer who indulges in such misrepresentations on paper will do so over the counter; consequently to show courtesy where it does not belong, or to AFFECT a regard for the integrity of all competitors might seem very magnanimous were it not for these palpable evidences to the contrary. We invite the most critical investigation to what we say and do in DRY GOODS and CARPETS; also to every other article of merchandise composing our stock.

Severed by Fate.

Chicago Tribune.

"Good-by, Mulcahey."

"Bon soir, Ethel," replied a tall, stately youth whose pants flapped dismally in the soft June zephyrs about three inches above his sumptuous feet.

"Will you come again Saturday night, pet?" asked Ethel Redingote, coyly placing her hand on Reginald Mulcahey's shoulder.

"I cannot," was the reply, in low, suppressed tones.

"Why not?" asked the girl, a look of pain flitting at a single flit over her spirituelle features.

"Because, said Reginald, softly kissing her while she kept watch for the old man, "I have an engagement to beat three aces for a man that evening."

The girl looked at him again as he stood there in all his beauty and strength. "And would you leave me for three aces?" she asked in low, tear-stained tones.

"Yes," replied Reginald, "I certainly would.

For an instant neither spoke. Presently the dog came up the garden walk and bit Reginald on the first base. He turned, went slowly away, and never showed up again.

A LETTER to the Boston Journal from Moretown, Vt., the residence of the prolific Harrimann family, reports that James Harrimann, whose wife last week gave birth to four children, received a few days ago, a notice that he has been granted a pension with arrears of $420. The pension, it seems, was granted on the day of the children's birth. The new comers, who are now ten days old, are all living and well. Mrs. Harriman is but thirty years old. Sixteen months ago she had twins, so that she has now six little ones to care for. Her grandmother had seventeen children and her mother also had a large family.

Disease is an effect, not a cause. Its origin is within; its manifestations without. Hence, to cure the disease the cause must be removed, and in no other way can a cure ever be effected. WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE is established on just this principle. It realizes that of all diseases arise from deranged kidneys and liver, and it strikes at once at the root of the difficulty. The elements of which it is composed act directly upon these great organs, both as a food and restorer, and, by placing them in a healthy condition, drive disease and pain from the system.
For the innumerable troubles caused by unhealthy Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs; for the distressing Disorders of Women; for Malaria, and for physical derangements generally, this great remedy has no equal. Beware of imposters, imitations and concoctions said to be just as good.
For Diabetes, ask for WARNER'S SAFE DIABETES CURE.
For sale by all dealers.
